Department of Botany,
Pomona College, California.

Dear Sir:

Three packages of specimens arrived from you yesterday, and I am looking forward with pleasure to examining this material.

I shall write you a letter concerning the possibility of coöperation in the Revised Flora of Los Angeles. I think there will be no trouble so far as nomenclature and generic ~~limits~~ ~~limits~~ are concerned. The chief problem in publishing a flora of such a limited area is finance. I doubt if we can publish it so as to sell at a price within the reach of students. It would cost but little more to publish a flora of ~~the entire~~ Southern California, which would have a much wider sale. But, as I said, I will give this further consideration and let you know later.

One of my students is carrying on some cultural studies of the eschscholzia. Would it be possible for you to send us a dozen or more living specimens of the common annual species? We should be glad to pay for any expense involved.

Yours sincerely,

L. B. Abraham
